Schools news

SWEDISH education leaders were impressed by the high standard of ICT facilities at Cyril Jackson Primary School in Limehouse. The school has been recognised for its outstanding information communication technology and head teachers and education leaders from the Centre for School Development in Sweden were keen to find out more. As part of the visit pupils demonstrated their proficiency with the school's cutting edge facilities, including green screen technology, iPads, visualisers, robotics, laptops, data loggers and the school's virtual learning platform. The visitors were impressed by the school and how effectively they used ICT to inspire teaching and learning.
